Software Process Model

For our careConnect system, we choose the spiral model. Because for now, we have identified the majority of the software requirements. We shall define the rules for requirements, and we shall finetune parts of software requirements based on customers' needs. We take into account all possible risks in each stage of developing our system, from communication, planning, modeling, construction, and deployment.